A Story of South Africa

By Cynthia Stockley

With Frontispiece. $1.35 net. (By mail, $1.50)

In Mrs. Stockley's new story we are again transported to Africa. It is a picture of men who could forget self-interest to hold out a helping hand to the weak, of men who die in lone silent places so that others might live in safety and security, and of women who could make sacrifices as great for the public good. Characters such as these make the material for a love story of unusual power.

More Than Kin

By Patricia Wentworth

$1.35 net. (By mail, $1.50)

Miss Wentworth turns again to the period of the Terror: shows France in the throes of the Revolution; depicts the relentless malice of the leaders of the bloodthirsty hordes that swarmed through the streets of Paris; gives us a thrilling account of hairbreadth escapes and daring rescues; and withal presents a charming love story.

By the Author of "Howards End" (4th Edition)

A Room With a View

By E. M. Forster

$1.35 net. (By mail, $1.50)

"This is one of the cleverest and most entertaining novels we have read for some time. The characters are as clear as a portrait by Sargent, and there are many of them. One is continually moved to appreciative smiles by clever little touches of description and enlightenment. The story, too, is interesting and real."

—London Mail.

"A modern Pomander Walk, full of wit, good sense, and a dash of pathos."

—MISS GILDER in The Reader.

"You will read this book to be amused. It is light as thistledown, but very pretty, and it has a character, Mrs. Bean, who is a sort of English Mrs. Wiggs, not as poor as the lady of the cabbage patch, but just as much of an optimist. It is a charming story."—Chicago Tribune.

THE CENTURY CO., New York

The New Census Atlas of the World

Physical, Pictorial and Descriptive

THIS ATLAS is entirely new from cover to cover and has no superior. Produced at great cost to mark the beginning of the new census period, it comes into the great family of Atlases along entirely new lines and clearly out of the rut. It contains everything worth while to be found in any other Atlas (in the way of maps and descriptive matter), but in addition thereto it brings within its scope the vital statistics of the world, and particularly of the United States, as taken direct from the Government Census Reports of 1910 and the latest Foreign Official Reports. Its maps of all states, territories and countries of the world are extra large and entirely new, all printed in colors.

The New Census Atlas of the World

contains over 100 Maps and Diagrams in Colors; the Flags of all Nations; the Arms of all Nations; Comparative Sizes of all European Nations; Military Forces of the World; Military Strength of the World; Comparative Sizes of the United States Possessions; Land Elevations; Ocean Depths; Rainfall of the United States; Conservation Maps of the U. S. Forests; Productive Areas of the Principal Commercial Staples of the World; Statistical Diagram Showing Growth of the United States; Steamship Routes; Maps of all States, Territories and Countries of the World.

24 Pages of 1910 Population Statistics

There are over 100 beautiful half-tone pictures illustrating the descriptive matter pertaining to all countries of the globe. These pictures are strictly up-to-date, showing Wireless Telegraphy; Rescues by Wireless; Types of Aerial Craft; Comparative Sizes of Aerial Navies; Progress of Panama Canal; Rubber Growing; Tobacco Curing; Types of the Modern Floating Cities, etc.

The Statistical Department is replete with information. All Census figures are given. Commodities of the World, with maps showing principal areas of production. These statistics handle all questions in regard to production of hundreds of commodities, such as pig iron, coal, petroleum, manufactured products, imports, exports, farm products; also vessel tonnage, railroad mileage and tonnage, etc., etc.

A UNIQUE DEPARTMENT

THE NEW CENSUS ATLAS OF THE WORLD contains a unique department entitled "FACTS ABOUT THE WORLD." This department shows the Principal Canals of the World and their Tonnage; Highest Mountains; Principal Seaports; Longest Rivers; Largest Lakes, Oceans and Cities; The Capitals of the World; Important Tunnels; Area of Islands; World's Strength in War Aeroplanes and Comparison of Aerial Navies; Manufactures of the United States; Chronological Outline of American History from 986 to 1911; Statistics of States; Statistics of Cities; Government of the District of Columbia; Past Political Complexion of Various States; Party Lines in Congress since 1881; Order of Presidential Succession; Conservation of Lands and Forests; Forest Service; Principal Languages of the World; Comparative Prices of Commodities; How Wireless Telegraph Works; Recent Historical Events; Inventions and Inventors; Religious Divisions of Europe and the United States, etc.

ANNOUNCE THE REMOVAL OF THEIR
NEW YORK OFFICES AND BOOK ROOM
FROM THEIR PRESENT QUARTERS AT EIGHTY-FIVE FIFTH AVENUE TO

16 EAST FORTIETH STREET

BETWEEN FIFTH AND MADISON AVES.

MAY 24TH

THIS new location is convenient both to those living in the city and to visitors, being within easy reach of the new Grand Central and Pennsylvania Stations, the express and local stations of the Subway, and all other tunnels, as well as the surface lines.

Here attractively displayed will be found all the publications of the House and many special books in unique bindings.

For the convenience of the Book Trade a sample room has been fitted up where the buyers from out of town with their friends will receive a warm welcome.

This Is Quite True

THE best kind of Summer trade-promoter is not the mere list of selected titles with a few words of cut-and-dried attempt at catching the interest of the buyer—rather, it is the live-wire magazine catalogue with snappy chapters and thrilling scenes reprinted from the novels, travel books and other seasonable literature. It is this kind of light lunch of good things that whets the appetite for the books themselves. No other imprint proposition is half as productive of direct orders as “Summer Reading,” and every live bookseller can use a hundred or two at little cost but with happy results. Write us when you read this or you may be too late for an imprint lot. The Publishers' Weekly, 298 Broadway, New York.

NOTES IN SEASON.

A book that is likely to be read with no small interest in this country as well as in England is "King Edward VII. as a Sportsman," by Alfred E. T. Watson, assistant editor of the Badminton Library of Sports and Pastimes, which deals with the various branches of the sport in which the late king was an active participator or of which he was a patron. It is published by Longmans, Green & Co. and is fully illustrated.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY will publish on June 15 "When the Red Gods Call," by Beatrice Grimshaw, author of "Fiji and Its Possibilities," etc. The scene is New Guinea, the hero an Irishman full of courage, the heroine a thoroughly feminine English girl.

The issue is love under such difficulties as a savage land alone can present. The title is taken from a line in Kipling's poem, "The feet of the young men."

THE STURGIS & WALTON COMPANY have just published "The Suffragette: a History of the Women's Militant Suffrage Movement," by Sylvia Pankhurst, a book—it is full of interesting illustrations from snap-shots—that describes from the inside all the startling incidents of the Equal Suffrage Movement—the arrests, the jail experiences, the forcible feeding, the raids on the House of Commons, the police court trials, etc., of the suffragettes. It gives all the facts about the deeds of the suffragettes, and is the most powerful plea for women's suffrage that has been published.

Two novels have come to us from the Century Company, one, "An Ardent American," by Mrs. Russell Codman, a new writer, is the diary of an American girl visiting America for the first time. Her parents were American, but she had been born and educated abroad, and declares her patriotism in foreign accent and phrasing. The other is by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, and is entitled "John Sherwood, Ironmaster," the story of a man absorbed in business who finds that unless he stops the work he loves he will die. He goes to the Maine woods and there meets "the one woman," and learns that the world holds many interests besides his business and that life is a beautiful thing when shared with others.

REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY call attention to their "New Census Atlas of the World, Physical, Pictorial and Descriptive." It contains everything worth while to be found in any atlas in the way of maps and descriptive matter, but in addition it brings within its scope the vital statistics of the world, and particularly of the United States, taken direct from the Government Census Reports of 1910 and the latest foreign official reports. A unique department is called "Facts about the world," and shows the principal canals of the world and their tonnage, highest mountains, principal seaports, longest rivers, largest lakes, oceans and cities, important tunnels, and much other important and useful data.

SMALL, MAYNARD & COMPANY will have ready in June "The Story of the Aeroplane," by Claude Grahame-White, holder of the Gordon Bennett cup, who has had wide experience as an air pilot and success in making and improving aeroplanes; the book will be profusely illustrated from photographs and diagrams; "The Big League," by Charles E. Van Loan, is a baseball story to delight the heart of every "fan," "The Garden of the Sun," by Captain T. J. Powers, U. S. A., tells a story of army life in the Philippines, filled with the glamour of vivid tropical setting and the tense situations of existence in an outpost where the dangers of insurrection are ever present; and "The Cross of Honor," by Mary Openshaw, who writes a romance with Napoleon for hero and the Countess Walenska for heroine.

Weekly Record of New Publications

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent by publisher for record. Books received, unless of minor importance, are given descriptive annotation. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Brown, Helen Dawes.

Orphans. Bost., Houghton Mifflin, '11. (My20) c. 286 p. D. $1.20 n.

The story portrays the effects of divorce on the children of separating parents most appealingly. It begins with the inevitable separation of a husband absorbed in his business from his frivolous and pleasure-seeking wife. The two children, a boy and a girl, though nominally in the charge of their parents, are practically set adrift in the world. What becomes of them, and how the baleful effects of their parents' separation continue to hang over them, is part of the story. The book is one of serious intention, but is by no means lacking in narrative interest and humor.

A biography of Thomas Deacon, the Manchester non-juror. [N. Y., Longmans,]

- '11. (My20) 19+215 p. (4 p. bibl.) por. O. (Publications of the Univ. of Manchester; Historical ser.) $2.50 n.
- Thomas Deacon (1697-1753) was an English physician and non-juring bishop—that is, one of those who refused to take the oath of allegiance to William and Mary, or to their successors, after the revolution of 1688. The author submits new facts about Deacon's birth and parentage, and throws new light upon various periods of the movement, making this the most complete biography of Deacon that has yet appeared.

The spirit of the island; il. by Sidney M. Chase. Bost., Little, Brown, '11. (My20) c. 273 p. D. $1.25 n.
To Martha's Vineyard comes a man suffering from ill health, grieving over a great sorrow, and absorbed in his own wretchedness, and Mr. Coates depicts his gradual readjustment under the subtle forces of sun and sea and springtime. The heroine is a mystifying, alluring creature, a veritable sprite. Patty Merivale symbolizes in her own personality the spirit of the island, its quietness, tenderness and charm. She and her sister are the heroines of a double romance, which after some complications and a surprising denouement with regard to Patty ends satisfactorily.

The speakers of the House of Commons from the earliest times to the present day, with a topographical description of Westminster at various epochs, and a brief record of the principal constitutional changes during seven centuries; with notes on the illustrations by J: Lane and a portrait of every speaker where one is known to exist. N. Y., J: Lane, '11. (My20) 40+255 p. O. $6.50 n.

Author is senior clerk in the House of Commons, and has written "A history of St. James's Square," "Life and letters of John Delane," etc. This account of over two hundred separate elections to the chair, covering between them a period of more than seven centuries, is a blend of history and biography, introducing matter which tends to throw light upon the origin of Parliaments and the historical associations of the Abbey. A well-arranged catalogue of speakers and complete index close the volume.

The ever-coming kingdom of God; a discussion on religious progress; tr. by Dr. Archibald Duff. [N. Y., Macmillan,] '11. (My20) 86 p. D. 80 c. n.

Author is professor of Old Testament theology in the University of Basle, Switzerland. All the struggles upwards out of the chaos towards life and consciousness, everything amid our confused crowding that presses towards the light through battle and through error, everything that weaves dreams and sings ideals are so many evidences of the progress toward God's kingdom on earth. This is the lesson of the book, which is really a summary of the author's "Theology of the prophets," a work never translated into English.

Dawn O'Hara, the girl who laughed; front. in colors by R. Ford Harper. N. Y., Stokes, '11. (My20) c. 302 p. D. $1.25 n.

Dawn O'Hara is an Irish-American newspaper woman in New York, where she has married dissolute, brilliant Peter Orme, who after making her life a misery, at last goes insane. Dawn goes on working to support herself and her husband and then she has a nervous breakdown and has to rest for months. When she is well she goes back to newspaper work, this time in Milwaukee, where she has romantic experiences always spiced by her keen sense of humor. A German doctor loves Dawn and wants her to divorce Orme and marry him, and just then Peter Orme comes out of the asylum cured. From this point the story's climax is reached in a few quickly moving incidents. The newspaper world and the Germans of Milwaukee are vividly drawn.

Torchy; il. by G: Brehm and Ja. Montgomery Flagg. N. Y., Clode, '11. (My20) c. '09-'11. 311 p. D. $1.25 n.

With his usual happy touch the author of "Shorty McCabe" tells in most approved New York slang the story of a messenger and office boy of most varied natural gifts. His "places" bring him in contact with "fake" and other "promoters," and their business schemes and one and all find him most useful or most dangerous, and employ him on errands that need "gumption," resource and perseverance. "Torchy" (name given because of red hair) has a weak spot for pretty girls and some amusing adventures are connected with his desire to please them.

Psychic phenomena, science and immortality; being a further excursion into unseen realms beyond the point previously explored in "Modern light on immortality," and a sequel to that previous record. Bost., Sherman, French, '11. (My20) c. 556 p. O. $2.25 n.

Mr. Frank is well known as a thorough investigator of psychic phenomena. We have here presented a varied and illuminating array of psychic experiences—some personal, having occurred in his own household—all carefully authenticated. In order to understand their nature, Mr. Frank has had practically to write a new and most informative treatise on psychology. To cover his entire ground he must know electrical science, radio-activity and the most advanced fields of physics and energetics to discover the nature of thought, the principle of telepathy and similar manifestations. The bearing of this data upon immortality is of great interest.

Vocal expression in speech; a treatise on the fundamentals of public speaking adapted to the use of colleges and universities; with the editorial co-operation of Rollo L. Lyman. Bost., Ginn, '11. (My20) c. 7+315 p. D. $1.

The aim of this book is to present an entirely new point of view in the study of oral expression. Based upon a fundamental similarity between expression in music and expression in speech, the text is separated into four divisions: speech melody, speech quality, speech rhythm, and speech dynamics. For each of these speech elements a complete and thorough programme of study is presented, accompanied by several hundred illustrative selections. The whole conception is the cultural side of public speaking. Adapted for elementary classes of college grade in elocution.

Education as growth; or, the culture of character; a book for teachers' reading circles, normal classes, and individual teachers. Bost., Ginn, ['11.] (My20) c. 5+275 p. D. $1.25.

A book for parents and teachers. Without undue technicality, it makes application of the latest results of study in psychology to the problems of home and school education of the young. The work is optimistic, indicating what is worth while in life, and showing how to inspire the young with a desire for happy and useful living. The nobility of service and the transforming power of high ideals shine forth on every page. The method of the book is that of evolution or development—each chapter treating the spiritual life of the developing child on a higher level, till he is seen at last in the process of self-realization in view of a worthy destiny. Author is president of Michigan State Normal College.

New Testament evangelism; appendices prepared by J. G. Shearer, D.D. N. Y., Doran, ['11.] (My20) c. 12+313 p. D. $1.25 n.

A study of the great awakenings of conscience throughout the ages, from Old Testament times to the present. The conditions which gave rise to them, and the preparations and methods which contributed to their success are all carefully analyzed. The author is convinced that the great need of modern Christianity is evangelism, and that according to New Testament standards every minister should be naturally an evangelist and every church an evangelistic centre.

By the author of the "Tramp trip: how to see Europe on 50 cents per day." He has two substantial marks of success in a wife whom he calls "Beamer" and an automobile named "Get There," and he has quite as jolly a time seeing Europe by this means as he did twenty-five years ago afoot. This is probably because he has not too much money, but still has to think and plan economical ways to go, and because he is happy-go-lucky enough to sacrifice conventional sight-seeing to the unexpected beauties of the road. Any one who wants practical details of a reasonable trip and any one enjoying another's enjoyment will like this book.

Thurley Ruxton is a beautiful girl, who goes to live with a rich woman in New York. The girl resembles the Princess Thirvinia of Hertzeotha, who has come secretly to New York. Every one believes that Thurley is the Princess, and the girl and her hostess, for a joke, keep up the deception, but when the duke who wishes to marry the princess turns up and Thurley is kidnapped they find that the joke has too serious consequences. An attractive young American rescues the girl, and the tangle is unravelled to every one's satisfaction.

John Sherwood, ironmaster. N. Y., Century Co., '11. (My20) c. 316 p. D. $1.20 n.

John Sherwood is a master of men, he is also a slave of his own iron will and never lagging energy of mind. His growth from starved and drudging youth to the position of master in a great industry, his first bitter defeat when the tired body can no longer resist the inroads of disease, and he realizes he must give up the fight he loves to battle for his life—all this is portrayed with much skill and reality. But, of course, Sherwood does not die, and the story of how he seeks and finds health in the Maine woods, his gradually changing outlook on life, in a broader interpretation of the art of living; and finally how, with the advent of "the one woman," he plucks supreme happiness from the heart of tragedy, constitute the main threads of this novel.

"The aim of the author of this volume has been to convey, by means of a series of separate, though connected pictures, as vivid an impression as possible of the splendid ceremonial which once surrounded the 'hallowing' of our English monarchs, and of which only a fragment remains to-day."—Preface to edition of 1902. Edward VII. revived much of the old ceremony which had been abandoned since the coronation of George IV. The author, who as Sacrist and Minor Canon of Westminster Abbey, saw the entire ceremony at the time of King Edward's coronation, gives a minute description of it. King George will follow his father's precedent.

A study of the personality of the author of "Uncle Tom's cabin," more than of her literary work. The details of her life, its joys and sorrows, are given from her own standpoint, and she is shown as essentially a wife and mother devoted to her home beyond all the recognition she gained on both sides of the world. The development of her religious faith which, from the Calvinism her father, Lyman Beecher, preached, turned to the Gospel of love to all and salvation for all is specially well treated.

Crystallography and practical crystal measurement. [N. Y.] Macmillan, '11. (My20) 14+946 p. il. O. $8.50 n.

This work presents at the same time both a guide to practical work in crystallography and all the essential theory of the subject, not only as regards crystal morphology, but also with respect to the physical properties of crystals. A feature of the work is the absence of a forbiddingly mathematical aspect. The student is shown that there are really no mathematical difficulties involved, but that, on the contrary, all the necessary calculations of crystal angles and elements, as well as of the physical constants, are both simple and straightforward, requiring only an ordinary acquaintance with simple trigonometry and the use of a table of logarithms. King Edward VII. as a sportsman; with an introd. and a chapter on "Yachting" by Captain the Hon. Sir Seymour Fortescue; contributions by the Marquess of Ripon and others; with 1 photogravure plate, 10 plates in colour, 12 Rembrandt-gravure plates and 79 half-tone illustrations. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (My20) 30+380 p. O. $6 n.

Mr. Watson, who is assistant editor of the Badminton library of sports and pastimes, asserts that had King Edward been a private personage the account of his career as a sportsman could scarcely have failed to arrest attention from those devoted to the various pursuits in which he won renown, notably yachting, racing, shooting and golfing. The book deals intimately with the life of the king at his country residences, showing the unselfishness and generosity of his character as well as the qualities of courage and perseverance which brought him success in various branches of sport.

The Publishers' Weekly

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT

May 20, 1911

The editor is not responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers should send books promptly for weekly record and descriptive annotation, if possible in advance of publication. The Record of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

SELLING BOOKS ON BUSINESS.

Printer's Ink, the well-known advertising periodical, recently printed, under the heading "Building Up a Business Library," an article which is not without its lesson for the bookseller. We reprint it elsewhere in this issue of the WEEKLY, together with the suggestive bibliography of business books, which accompanied it.

Some of its statements are, perhaps, a little surprising, if not misleading. One wonders, for instance, who the bookseller was who was unable, in the face of a standing order for "all new books on business topics" to fill in "some years" even "the first shelf." We find, from our own records, that something over 160 books on business topics were published last year alone, and 72 so far in 1911 (four months), certainly very considerably more than one shelf.

Books on business are unquestionably a new development; but there is a demand for them, and they are coming now thick and fast: some are hastily compiled, poorly printed and obscurely published; others, though authoritative, are intended primarily for text-book use; but there is an increasingly large publication of well-balanced and up-to-date handbooks of practical business methods.

Time was, and that not long ago either, when the average business man was as distrustful of "book learning" as the average farmer. But the alert and convincing pioneer work of certain of the business magazines, System just for one example, has changed all that. The modern business man realizes that accounting is as exact a science as the mathematics on which it is based; that retail salesmanship has tactics and strategies as carefully worked out as those of the art of war and solidified into as generally accepted practice; that advertising depends, not on luck, but exact knowledge; that credit has its rules and laws quite as fixed and defensible as those of "bridge" or bridge-building.

This change of attitude has stimulated, first magazine, and then book treatment of commercial and business problems. It has also made the task of selling such books a comparatively easy matter. No American business man will grudge for one minute the cost, or hesitate over the purchase of a book that he believes may help him make more money. The bookseller's problem is simply to call his attention to the book.

How? By advertising, of course. Not in newspaper space necessarily, though that may be good; but by word of mouth, by phone, by personal letter or post card.

Don't waste your ammunition. Make sure first that the new book, whatever it is, is really authoritative, new, vital and intrinsically worth while. Then notify only the men who will be really interested in it; the more specialized it is, the fewer but the more certain the possible sales.

A new book on the proper handling of credit accounts should interest every department store and jobbing house credit man in your neighborhood. If a new good treatise on factory cost keeping comes out drop a line about it to every manufacturer and shop superintendent in your territory. Perhaps your city is a railroad division point or an even more important railroad centre; last month appeared a new treatise on the construction of railroad rates that ten men in your city will surely buy if only you call their attention to it.

Some of these men will have heard of these books through their own trade channels, of course; the news of their publication will not be news to all of them. But a personal invitation to secure it of you directly and without trouble will, in nine cases out of ten, result in sales. And, better yet, next time one of these men wants a book, on his own or any other subject, he is going to remember you. One sale isn't much, perhaps; but meanwhile you are developing a clientele, one, moreover, which you probably couldn't reach in any other way.

Your own ingenuity will best suggest ways for varying your appeal, and adapting it to various classes of possible purchasers. This statement is suggestive rather than directive. Business books are not "dead ones," as the writer was disconsolately told not long ago; they are in a minor way, if handled intelligently, one of the liveliest and most helpful stocks a bookseller can carry.

It is not unlikely that the wide publicity of the Hoe sale and its record of fabulous prices for old books will add to the activity of the book thieves. As instances of book thievery now and again come to light in the police courts, it is very evident that some dealers neglect to scrutinize properly the offers of valuable books made by unknown sellers.

A few diplomatic questions on the part of the buyer in suspicious cases as to how long the seller has had the volume or set, what he originally paid for it, why he wants to sell it now, and a request for name and address would in most cases result in satisfying the dealer as to the honesty of the suspect. The dealer who follows a tactful method of getting at facts will at least satisfy his own conscience, and if later he turns out to be, after all, mistaken he will be spared the humiliating knowledge of having purchased stolen goods from a fellow-tradesman's stock without any investigation. The dealer who fails to use every precaution in buying old books will soon himself be held in suspicion by other dealers, for he is violating a very important ethical responsibility in the profession of bookselling.

At the banquet of the American Booksellers' Association last week the number of publishing houses represented by their principals was a marked feature of the social climax of a notable week. The banquet committee sent special invitations to every member of the American Publishers' Association, both present and past, to join with the booksellers on this festive occasion, and the number that accepted added not only numerically to the great gathering, but helped largely to promote the fine fraternal atmosphere that so marked all the sessions of the convention. Twenty-four firms were represented at the banquet, and the committee received a considerable number of replies from others expressing the greatest regret at inability to attend.

This was the first time in the history of the booktrade that both publishers and booksellers have met together in any such numbers on an occasion of this kind, and it evidenced in an emphatic way the new "get-together" spirit which is leavening the trade.

THE publication of R. R. Bowker's work on "Copyright: Its History and Its Law," has been postponed by Houghton Mifflin Company until early fall, when it is hoped to include in final shape the British and Canadian codes now pending in the respective Parliaments. The text of the book will deal, in six parts of twenty-three chapters, with the nature and historical development of copyright, general and literary copyright, dramatic, musical and artistic copyright, copyright protection and procedure, international and foreign copyright, and such cognate topics as business relations of authors and publishers and the literature of copyright. Appendixes will include the full text of the American code of 1909, Copyright Office, Supreme Court and other regulations, the British, Canadian and Australian codes, and the full text of all international conventions from Berne (1886) to Berlin (1908), and from Montevideo (1889) to Buenos Aires (1910).

BUILDING UP A BUSINESS LIBRARY.

SOME years ago a leading advertising agency, when it had built a magnificent, extensive "library" room, set about filling up the long rows of shelves with books. The list of books it could make up in the office didn't fill a "five-foot" shelf, so it placed a standing order with its bookseller to supply it with all new works on business topics as fast as issued. The books have been supplied as ordered, and the order continues in force, but the first shelf in the business library is yet to be filled!

Good business books are few in number. Practically all of those worth reading have been published within the past ten years and some of the best within two or three years. Business books of any kind, good, bad and indifferent, are far from plentiful. To build up any sort of a library at all, you are forced to give a very elastic meaning to the word business, and include within its scope works of a specializing character, such as treatises on banking, finance, transportation, accounting, shop practice, etc., books which no doubt are valuable to men engaged in each specific line but are too full of detail to be of practical value to those engaged in other lines. To be specific, really helpful books on advertising and selling are very few. Most of them are of the omnibus theoretical variety.

Books like these will figure, however, in any list of the business classics we know of. If, for example, we wish to make out a list of, say, the "ten best books" on business, as W. H. Ingersoll, the general manager of Robert Ingersoll & Bro., of New York City, was interested enough the other day to do, we shall find that six of the ten are of a specializing character.

"First on the list," says Mr. Ingersoll, "I would put Veblen's 'Theory of Business Enterprise,' because it is introductory in its nature. This, and Parsons' 'Business Administration' are fundamental in relation to the first department of business, which, I take it, is the administration. Parsons I put second. The feature next in importance to administrative is the financial, and Rollins' 'Financing an Enterprise,' and Garrison's little volume on 'Accounting Every Business Man Should Know,' would make third and fourth on my list.

"The next important feature of a business is the supply or manufacturing end, and I would feel obliged to add three very important books to cover this. For one of them, Emerson's 'Efficiency.' I wouldn't take a thousand dollars, if I couldn't replace it. It ought to be considered indispensable to any business man. Carpenter's 'Profit-Making Management' and Diemer's 'Factory Organization and Administration' go with it. All three of these get a little away from merchandising proper, but they will richly repay study. Last in analysis comes the selling or sales department of business. Here I would put down Walter Dill Scott's 'Theory of Advertising,' and if it is out yet, in book form, his new work on 'Selling.' That leaves one more place. I would like to include 'Business as It Is Done in the Great Commercial Centers,' but for the sake of comprehensiveness, I would set down instead some good work on commercial law, such as Parsons' 'Laws of Business.' I think it would be difficult to duplicate these names. A few others may be just as good, but there are none better, I believe. There's another book, pure fiction, but very helpful, that I certainly would add if there were another place, and that is Lorimer's 'Letters of a Self-Made Merchant to His Son.'"

It is natural that satisfactory works of a general and non-technical nature should wait on the specializing books, when we consider the sources of our business literature. All of the best, or nearly all, comes from three technical sources—the accountants and production engineers; magazines like the Journal of Accounting and Engineering Magazine; and the universities, which, within the past few years, have been adding professional schools on commerce, accounting and business administration.

When such brilliant results have been obtained at the production end of business by men like Taylor and Carpenter and Diemer—millions of dollars in the aggregate have been saved by scientific management—it is a little vexatious to observe the obstacles their methods are encountering at the selling end. Elementary as is the proposition that salesmen can be trained and their work systematized, it yet comes in for a fine show of contempt from the large majority of managers.

"I have often wished," said a manager of another kind, the head of one of the largest selling organizations of its kind in the country, "that there were some practical and inexpensive book that I could put into the hands of my salesmen and get them to study, as a basis for me to build upon. We need something that will teach men their powers and how to use and develop them, as well as teach the principles and methods of business. I have not found anything yet which is just the thing. If I could, it would save me a lot of work. Everything is either too voluminous and literal, or too brief and superficial. Emerson's 'Efficiency' comes nearest the mark, in suggestiveness, at least. Something like this, aimed at the sales department, would hit the bull's eye."

Here is a list of books on business, which comprises nearly everything of a general nature, and a few of the leading works of a special nature, selected with reference to the needs of the average business man:

SECOND READING OF CANADIAN COPYRIGHT ACT.

Special Correspondence to the Publishers' Weekly.
 TORONTO, May 13, 1911.

THE HON. SYDNEY FISHER, Minister of Agriculture, and father of the new Copyright Act, introduced the bill in the House of Commons yesterday, when the measure was given its second reading, prior to going into committee. The minister stated quite frankly that there was to be no reciprocity in copyright between the United States and Canada, and that as a result of the passing of the act Canada would likely have to withdraw from the International Copyright Union. The United States will only be given such provisions as are accorded to Canadian authors, and printing in Canada will be made an essential part of the arrangement. The leader of the opposition heartily endorsed Mr. Fisher when he said: "I do not see why we should give the United States privileges when she gives us none."

The Canadian Government will make a strong effort to remain in the Copyright Union, and Mr. Fisher expressed the hope that her application would meet with favor, on account of the increasing value of the Canadian market. The view now embodied in the new Canadian law was practically accepted by the Imperial Copyright Conference, but the minister could not say whether Britain would act on that principle. In the meantime it was proposed to give the privileges of Canadian copyright to Great Britain, New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and Newfoundland. The Canadian Government is confident of reciprocal provisions in the other self-governing dominions of the empire, and it was proposed to negotiate for reasonable reciprocal powers.

The section of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association composed of representatives of the printing industry met on Thursday to discuss the act in relation to the printing industry. They were unable to come to any conclusion in the matter until certain sections had been explained by the Government. It is beginning to be felt that the act in its present form has been the work of one or two individual publishers in Toronto, who are not in touch with the other publishers and who have axes to grind. MANY HOE RARITIES REMAIN TO BE SOLD.

ANOTHER Gutenberg Bible and four more Caxtons are among the 29,000 volumes of the Robert Hoe library still unsold, which will make up the three other parts of the sale. The Gutenberg is printed on paper, and while it is not considered as rare as the copy on vellum, it is expected that it will bring at least $35,000.

One of the four Caxtons is a perfect copy of Ranulf, or Randolph, Higden's "Polychronicon," which Caxton printed without date or place. It is particularly interesting, because it is Caxton's only original work of any magnitude. Blades records only five perfect copies, some of which are made up. The Hoe copy is unusually fine.

Another Caxton is the edition of John Gower's "Confessio Amantis," printed in 1483, one of the finest copies extant. The Earl of Jersey copy in 1885 brought $4050. By a typographical error the date of printing is given in the work as 1493, instead of 1483. Caxton died in 1491.

The third Caxton in the Hoe library is a first edition of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," printed in 1477-8 in black letter, with numerous illuminations. There are nine known copies extant.

A fragment of forty-four leaves represents Mr. Hoe's fifth Caxton, the "Golden Legend."

With about ten exceptions the finest of the Hoe manuscripts are yet unsold. There remain about 170 to go under the auctioneer's hammer. Other sensational prices, like $33,000, which Arthur Hoe paid for the "Pembroke Hours," may therefore be expected with good reason. Among other rare books is a copy of the famous Froissart "Chronicles," translated by John Bouchier, Baron Berners, and printed by Richard Pynson in 1522. It is a first edition of this English translation, and one of the finest copies in existence. It is in binding by Derome.

There are also copies of the Paris, 1501, and Florence, 1506, editions of the narrative of Amerigo Vespucci's voyage to America.

The Florence edition is the only copy in America. It was bought from Bernard Quaritch in 1884 for $3250. It is said that only ten copies of it were printed for distribution among the sovereigns of Europe. Shakespeare is represented by a first quarto edition of "A Midsommer Night's Dreame," 1600, and by the only perfect copy known of "Venus and Adonis," Edinburgh, 1627. The only other copy is in the British Museum. Halliwell says that this is the only early impression of a Shakespeare work printed out of England.

From the Kalbfleisch library are three editions of the "Letter of Columbus," printed at Rome in 1493, and extremely rare. One of them, called by HARRISSE the first edition, brought $2900 at the Barlow sale in 1890 and $1500 at the Ives sale in 1891.

Among the many other rarities are: First edition of the "Book of Christian Prayer and Meditation," London, 1659, commonly known as the "Queen Elizabeth Prayer Book;" Francesco Colonna's "Hypnerotomachi Poliphili," Venice, 1499; first Latin and French edition of Harriott-DeBry; one of the finest collections of Walton & Cotton's "Complete Angler" ever offered for sale, consisting of about fifty different editions, including the famous first, several of them being finely extra illustrated.

There is a remarkable collection of scarce editions of Francis Bacon, Chapman, Churchyard, Donne, Daniel, D'Urfey, Dryden, New-castle, Milton, Middleton, Massinger, Marlowe, Quarles, Suckling, Spenser, Sidney, Wither and Waller; probably the most complete collection in existence of Goldsmith, including a presentation copy of "The Vicar of Wakefield;" a copy of Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," on large paper, with portrait in first state; Pope's "Rape of the Lock," in original wrappers; "Le premier volume de enguerran de Moustralet," folio, (circa 1500,) and a lot of interesting and valuable Americana.

BOOK THIEF CAUGHT.

WILLIAM R. GRUBER, twenty years old, who says he is a secretary and lives at 211 West 69th Street, New York City, was arrested last week, charged with stealing a copy of More's "Utopia," worth $100, from Charles L. Bowman & Co., of 225 Fifth Avenue. The complainant against Gruber is Thomas F. Donohue, of the Bowman firm.

Donohue told the police that during the Christmas holidays Gruber was recommended to the firm and got a job. After he had been with the firm a while he left, and it was later discovered that a number of valuable books were missing, among them the volume of More's "Utopia" and a book autographed by George Cruikshank. The firm advertised in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for the books and got back two from a bookstore on Eighth Avenue. The police say that Gruber admits stealing the books and others that the firm did not miss.

A SECOND CLASS MAIL RULING.

THE Third Assistant Postmaster-General has granted finally re-entry to the second class mail of the Orange Judd Northwest Farmstead. The novel contention raised by Post Office Department in this case, according to Printers' Ink, was that any newspaper or other periodical should net from its subscribers or buyers at least half of the full subscription or per copy price, after deducting all costs of agents' work or other expenses in obtaining the circulation.

If on this basis, as computed by the Post Office Department, the publisher nets less than half the full regular advertised price the question was as to whether his periodical should be denied the second class cent-a-pound postage rate, and be compelled to pay eight times as much, on the grounds that the sales were made at "nominal rates." The decision indicates that the Government will not press its contention.

Another important point involved in this case was this question:

If a periodical's advertising receipts materially exceed its net subscription receipts, is that prima-facie evidence that it is "designed primarily for advertising purposes, or for free circulation or for circulation at nominal rates," and therefore should be denied the second class postage rate of one cent a pound, and be compelled to pay one cent for each two ounces?

The decision rendered does not seek to make any such ruling.

GUARDING RARE BOOKS.

If you attended the Hoe book sale or any other of the recent auctions of literary treasures, says a writer in the New York Sun, you noticed that some of the books that brought thousands of dollars were little volumes so small that you could easily slip one of them into your overcoat pocket. And a natural thing was to wonder what percentage of loss by theft or other causes they figured on having in these sales.

The big book auction concerns say that loss occurs so seldom that they never figure on it at all, for years of experience has developed a system hard to beat. From the time a library or a collection passes from the owners to the auctioning concern until the books are delivered to the final buyers they are watched night and day. Doors to the storage and cataloguing rooms are kept locked and no outsider may examine the books unless he has a written pass, and then he is required to register in a visitors' book.

When a rare volume is lent before a sale—the valuable "Dunciad" of the Hoe collection, for instance, was turned over to the Grolier Club for special exhibition in an exhibition of Alexander Pope's works—the person taking the volume must sign a receipt and assume liability for its safe return. Only trusted employees work in the catalogue department and time slips are kept of their goings and comings.

In the case of the Hoe library most of the listing and cataloguing was done in Mr. Hoe's home. There his books were shelved in eight rooms, and one room, which he called his working room, was reserved to himself. Here he kept some of the more valuable books, while the rarest, such as the Bible that brought $50,000, the "Morte d'Arthur" and the Pembroke "Hours" were in a safe.

Every book was wrapped and numbered before it was put into the packing case that protected it on its way to the sales rooms, and corresponding slips were kept and the books checked off when they came out of the cases. They were kept in fireproof rooms and under a special guard until wanted by the auctioneer.

"It is the autograph letters that have to be watched most carefully," said a representative of the Anderson Auction Company. "It would be easy to get one customer's selling consignment mixed with another's, and all pieces of paper look alike, even if they do have famous names on them. But when they are properly catalogued the hard part is over.

"We have to keep a lookout for thieves, but we know the notorious book thieves, just as detectives learn to know other sorts of criminals, and when a suspicious looking man or woman comes in to see the books we furnish a special escort, two sometimes, who show the books and see that they are in their places when the inspection is over."

PUBLICATION OF THE THIRTEENTH CENSUS.

THE plans for publishing the results of the Thirteenth Census, which have already been inaugurated, offer some unique features. It has hitherto been the practice to issue preliminary bulletins on a wide variety of topics, though for certain main branches of the census results each State has been the unit of presentation. These bulletins were later superseded by the final reports.

In the Thirteenth Census it is proposed to make the most general circulation of the results through the bulletins, but to group them so that they may be better available for permanent use and preservation. The bulletins will be of two main types, general bulletins for the United States and corresponding bulletins for each of the States. In the former, the results published for the United States as a whole will be subdivided by States; in the latter, State totals will be subdivided by counties and where appropriate by cities. The four main divisions of the census enumeration—Population, Agriculture, Manufactures and Mines—will thus be represented by a series of bulletins presenting by States the principal results of the census as rapidly as they can be tabulated. For each State a corresponding bulletin will be issued in which the facts will be presented by counties. As results are to be published as soon as available, the State bulletins will naturally come first in order of time.

Several types of bulletins are well advanced towards publication. In the field of population, the first bulletin for each state will deal with the numbers of the people, classified by place of residence. The second bulletin will deal with the principal elements of the population, sex, color and nativity, place of birth, illiteracy and school attendance. A subsequent bulletin will treat of citizenship and marital condition. In the field of agriculture the first bulletin will deal with farm acreage and property, live stock and principal crops. In the field of manufactures, the State bulletins will cover the general field for each State, giving the number of plants, value of products, employees, materials, etc., with distinction of the principal industries.

The most interesting feature of this scheme is the plan to combine, in one volume for each State, all the bulletins for the United States on general topics, and the bulletins of a state in a State Compendium. By far the greater number of inquirers as to census figures have heretofore found practically all the information they desired in the abstract of the census. The proposed plan will give them this information in the State Compendium, together with special information regarding the State and county or city in which they live. The State Compendium might therefore be described as a State edition of the Census Abstract.

One of the interesting problems of the plan of publications, from the inside point of view of the Bureau of the Census, has been to shape text and tables so that they can be used with the minimum changes of composition in the several publications in which they are to be embodied.

As it is the object of the Bureau of the Census to make its publications as useful as possible, a new feature of the proposed publications will be the inclusion in the general tables of a large amount of comparative data, giving figures from earlier enumerations, and also a considerable number of relative figures, such as rates of increase, percentage distribution and other familiar ratios.

Broadly stated, the general distribution of census results, in their permanent form, will be through the medium of the State Compendiums. The final reports will be issued in smaller editions than heretofore, and, being mainly for general reference purposes, preference will be given to their distribution to libraries and institutions of learning. The general plan of the Director of the Census is to place all information really wanted in the hands of the proper persons, but not to give to each inquirer a vast mass of detailed material which he does not want.

COMMUNICATIONS.

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT AS A CANADIAN JOBBER SEES IT.

MAY 4, 1911.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR.—We enclose herewith a copy of Bill No. 184, which is the new Canadian Copyright Act, which had its first reading on April 26. This is a bill that, if passed, will hit the American publishers and magazine people very hard. You will see that the bill before granting protection requires that a book or magazine must be printed in Canada, and in addition to this grants copyright only to bona-fide citizens of Canada.

There is a provision in Section 34 which will probably be construed to mean that books that are copyrighted in England will be able to secure protection in Canada merely by registration.

Section 35 makes practically the same provision for other countries beside Great Britain, but there is a proviso which will probably be used in the case of the United States, that no protection would be given to works of American origin unless an equal concession were made to Canadian authors by the American government.

It is a matter which should immediately be taken up by the State Department at Washington, as, if the Act becomes law without any understanding between the two governments, Canada will be a paradise for book and magazine pirates, with American books and magazines as their prey.

Trusting that you will be able to start some concerted action by the American Publishers' Association and the magazine people, we are

Very truly yours,

MCLEOD & ALLEN,

FRANK HAINS.

NEW COPYRIGHT WILL MAKE CANADA A PARADISE FOR PIRATES.

[The following copy of a private letter was recently sent to THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, as a suggestive interpretation of the present copyright situation in Canada. The writer is in very close touch with Canadian publishing matters, and his letter, with slight irrelevant exceptions, is printed in full.—ED. P. W.]

DEAR SIR: Since you were good enough to ask me to write to you on the Canadian copyright matter, I will give you what must necessarily be mainly my own feelings in the question, and also the impressions left on my mind after attending a meeting of the Book Publishers' Section of the Board of Trade held yesterday to discuss the proposed new Copyright Act in its relation to publishing.

Here I feel is the first stumbling block. The majority present, with possibly one or two exceptions only, evidently looked upon profits as the ultima thule of all publishing, and there is evidently a feeling among all those interested in so-called "publishing" in Canada that a Copyright Act is, or should be, a form of protection to those engaged in printing.

Many years ago there was in existence a Canadian Copyright Association, having within its fold several persons who were avowedly and deliberately pirates of existing literature which was copyrighted elsewhere, but not in Canada. A very ominous sign in connection with the present proposed legislation is that, quite recently, this Canadian Copyright Association revived its charter and sent a delegation up to Ottawa to interview the minister who is responsible for the present bill. Without doubt this association accomplished a good deal, since it was told me to-day that the minister admits having "gathered much useful information from Mr. ———."

Of these delegates the man in question was one of the worst offenders in the old days. Under the new proposed bill, as I read it, and as interpreted at the meeting yesterday, in order to obtain copyright in Canada, one must print in Canada a book within fourteen days of its first publication in a foreign country—the United States of course is the one country applicable throughout this bill. Every publisher knows that with an English-speaking population of only five million, as in Canada to-day it is manifestly impossible and absurd to attempt printing, in order to obtain copyright, even one of the five hundred or even a thousand new titles which are at present imported in more or less quantities from the United States into Canada every year.

It might frequently be possible for a pirate to find a book of which it would pay him to print an edition were he relieved of all royalty obligations to the figure of from 25 c. to 37½ c. per copy on a $1.50 book. Not only that, but it would be possible for a pirate to take the best out of a larger book and either abridge it or tie together the separate pieces selected, in order to make a smaller book to sell at a popular price—all of course without any idea of paying any royalty.

Here is a concrete case which was brought to my notice yesterday: An eminent Canadian doctor holding a chair in one of the colleges of medicine in Canada wrote to order for an American publisher a book embodying the result of many years' study and research in his particular line. This book would never have seen the light had it not been possible for this medical book publisher, by his energy and business ability, to have built up a sufficient business in the States to absorb an edition large enough to pay him back his money and possibly a profit. Undoubtedly this publisher was only able to undertake the work at all from the knowledge that a relatively small quantity could be sold to a Canadian medical house and a somewhat larger number to some publisher in England. It certainly would not pay an English house also to set up the book in question, which is very large and contains many cuts, nor would it even pay them to print from plates. Under these circumstances therefore no other plan for the publication of this work could have been followed. If this new law goes into effect it will be possible for a pirate to take any part of this work—and it would lend itself very well to such piracy—and bring that part out in a cheap form either for medical students or practitioners. Here we have a case in which a Canadian author suffers a very severe loss, but it is only an example of many instances where like suffering would be brought upon Canadian, English and American authors.

The Canadian author receives, if anything, a worse blow than the Canadian publisher—Canadian magazines, periodicals, Sunday papers, etc., now utilize a certain amount of native product. It is not to be supposed for a moment that these same publications will continue to pay any price, great or small, for a local product when they can "appropriate" the best material on the continent from those publications in the United States whose success is largely due to their being able to pay enormous prices for the best writers obtainable in the States.

In the matter of text-books, a great many American publications are well suited to conditions as existing in Canadian schools and colleges. It would be manifestly unwise from an expense standpoint for any house, even from borrowed plates, to print for copyright purposes in Canada each new book as published in the States, and yet in anywhere from six months to three years, after diligent agency work on the part of a Canadian representative, any one of these American books may turn out to be a profitable possibility for Canada. By that time, however, it is not possible to protect one's self here by copyright and one's energy and ability count for nothing, since what we, for instance should have to sell at a price including royalty, the unauthorized pirate could sell without providing for any such consideration. One of the members at yesterday's meeting, who represents a large concern here with printing interests as well as those of publishing, stated very emphatically, and as though with authority, that the manufacturing clause was inserted as a retaliatory measure against the United States. While of course the Americans have been held up to much censure for the insertion of the manufacturing clause in their own bill, if they were to be punished, possibly the most appropriate weapon would be a rod of their own pickling. At the same time the old adage of two wrongs not making a right holds as true as ever it did.

To sum up then, I can see great danger ahead for American authors and publishers and much annoyance and loss of profit to Canadian publishers and branch houses and agents and authors from the many opportunities for piracy as at present provided in this bill, with no great benefit accruing to the printers.

There is one other clause, the interpretation of which under improper administration could lead to much favoritism and dishonesty, and that is the fact that the Governor-in-Council is enabled at will to drive a coach-in-four, as one might say, through any essential part of the Act, and the Government is moreover apparently empowered to say at any time that the price of a book is too high and grants itself the power of regulating the price as it sees fit, all during the life of its presumable copyright protection.

OBITUARY NOTES.

KARL BAEDER, the son and successor of the noted publisher of guide books for travellers, died at Esslingen, Württemberg, this week. Mr. Baedeker retired from business a number of years ago.

EDGAR A. WERNER, the old bookseller of 35 Chestnut Street, Albany, N. Y., passed away May 9, in his 66th year. He had long made a specialty of State publications and was looked upon as an authority in his line. He had been ill for some months, so his death was not unexpected. He is the second one in the trade in Albany to pass away within a short time.

DR. WILLIAM ROBERT ANTHONY WILSON died last Sunday at his home in Pittsfield, Mass. He was born in Washington, Ill., January 28, 1870, graduated from Williams College in 1892, and took a medical course at Columbia University. He practiced medicine for a short time in Peoria, Ill., but relinquished his profession owing to ill health, and travelled extensively for several years. Dr. Wilson came to Pittsfield in 1906 and devoted himself to literary work. He was the author of the novels "The Rose of Normandy" and "A Knot of Blue." His boys' books, "Comrades Three" and "Journeys of the Kit-Kat Club" are widely known.

SAMUEL SCUDDER, who has a national reputation as a naturalist, and whose works on butterflies are important, died suddenly Wednesday at his home in Cambridge, Mass. He was born in Boston, 1837, graduated from Williams College in 1857, later receiving a degree from Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard. In 1862, when the late Louis Agassiz was establishing the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Cambridge, Mr. Scudder became one of his associates. From this time he also became permanently connected with the Boston Society of Natural History, being made president in 1880. At the same time that he was acting as president of the museum he was assistant librarian of Harvard University. In 1886 he became palaeontologist of the United States Geological Survey, which position he held until 1892, when he gave it up to devote himself more completely to his scientific study and writing.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ERNST HEINRICH HAECKEL, the famous materialist, who is professor of Zoology at the University of Jena, broke his hip bone Tuesday. He was standing on a stool reaching for a book on a high shelf when the stool broke. Because of his advanced age. Professor Haeckel being 77, the accident will go hard with him.

MR. AND MRS. MONTAGUE GLASS are to sail shortly for Italy, where they will spend the summer. While abroad Mr. Glass will be at work upon a novel for his publishers, Doubleday, Page & Co. A new volume of Potash and Perlmutter stories, to be called "Abe and Mawrus," will be published in the fall by the same house.

MRS. ANNIE FELLOWS JOHNSTON, author of the famous Little Colonel Series and other delightful stories, has left Texas permanently, where for the past few years she has resided, and is now living at her old home in Pewee Valley, Kentucky. She is at work on a new book—not a juvenile work, but a book of adult fiction—which L. C. Page & Company will publish in the fall.

It is not generally known that Pierre de Coulevain, whose new book, "The Unknown Isle," is announced for publication the latter part of this month, is a woman writer. Her first work attracted the attention of Ludovic Halevy and other eminent French critics and won for her the Academy prize. "The Unknown Isle" in the French has already gone through 112 editions, and the English translation has been made by Alys Hallard, who translated this author's "On the Branch."

D'ANNUNZIO'S villa, "La Capponcina," in Settingualo, which has been seized by his creditors, is one of the most remarkable dwelling places ever conceived by a writer. Here D'Annunzio wrote all his novels and plays. His one aim was to guard against interruption. The bell handle is covered with spikes, and can only be pulled in a certain way. Above it are the words "Do not touch me." The walls of the villa are covered with Latin inscriptions. In the author's study there is not a single article that is not at least four hundred years old. His writing table is an old church altar, upon which rests a Bible bound in pigskin. The chairs are Gothic in form, and the books in the cases are all old. The "Master" would not have modern books in his study on the ground that they destroyed his inspiration. The walls are covered with bronzes, antique pictures and sculpture. In a shrine in the vestibule is a mummy which the poet declares is that of an Egyptian princess. He bought it in Egypt. The lamps in the rooms belong to the Middle Ages, and burn now, as then, oil and candles. In his study at night time D'Annunzio burned sixty candles, claiming that only by candle light could he obtain inspiration.

BASEBALL NOTES.

In the opening game of the Publishers' League; played at Prospect Park, Saturday, May 6, D. Appleton & Co. defeated R. Appleton & Co. in a heavy hitting game by the close score of 11 to 10. Score:

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ACCORDING to the report of the general secretary of the American Tract Society, which held its annual meeting last week, the grand total of publications in all languages issued from the home office since its organization is 775,905,849 copies.

As a memorial to the late Peter F. Collier, of New York, who had large estates at Eatontown and Wickatunk, N. J., Mrs. Collier has appropriated a sum close to $100,000 for the erection of a hospital in Red Bank, N. J. The new hospital will be a non-sectarian institution.

A BOOK containing simple direct advice which if followed should enable business men to save their nervous force, to get rid of nervous strain and thus to gain more wholesome and vigorous brain power is Annie Payson Call's "Brain Power for Business Men," published by Little, Brown & Co.

EATON & MAINS publish "The Social Engineer," by Edwin L. Earp, Professor of Christian Sociology in Drew Theological Seminary. The book is a plea for workers trained to social service, written with a broad outlook, but essentially from a churchman's point of view.

ELEANOR HALLOWELL ABBOTT'S "Molly Make-Believe" continues on the list of the six best sellers. There will be a new book by this popular author in the early fall, in which will appear the two stories which won for their author two of the Collier thousand-dollar prizes, "The Sick-a-Bed Lady" and "The Very Tired Girl."

POSTMASTER-GENERAL HITCHCOCK announced Sunday last the designation of forty-seven additional postal savings depositories, making a total of 176 postal banks since January 3. The new offices designated will be ready to receive deposits on June 12. They are nearly all in small towns in the South and West.

FROM Wessels & Bissell Company we have received "Priest and Layman," by Ada Carter, author of "The Seamless Robe." It tells the story of David Kelman's love for Lily, the heroine, whom he has known all his life. Lily marries another man, and David bends all his strength to the curing of this man when he becomes a drunkard. There is a strong Christian Science element in the book.

THE new novel by Priscilla Craven, author of "The Pride of the Graftons," is to be called "The Rose with a Thorn." It is described as the story of a charming, innocent little American girl of great wealth who is sought in marriage by an Englishman of noble blood and empty purse. D. Appleton & Company publish Mrs. Craven's novel this week.

JENNINGS & GRAHAM have ready "Fishin' for Men, or, the Redemshun of Jeriko Kort House," by "Timothy Stand-by" (Joseph Clark). In provincial style it tells of all the activities of organized adult Bible class work. Mr. Clark, the author, has long been identified with the adult Bible class movement, and therefore speaks with authority on his subject.

"SIR JOHN HAWKWOOD, a Tale of the White Company in Italy," by Marion Polk Angelotti, which R. F. Fenno & Company have just issued, is a dashing tale of fourteenth century Italy, when Verona and Padua were at war and mercenaries were employed by both sides to fight their battles. A fair lady is rescued, a base prince defeated, and a brave soldier rewarded with riches and the lady's hand.

HAVING completed her popular Sidney Series of books for girls, Anna Chapin Ray has now written the first of a new series for boys, entitled "Buddie: the Story of a Boy." Miss Ray's fondness for boy characters has been apparent in her Teddy and Sidney Series, but not until now has she been able to make a genuine, warm-hearted, but mischievous boy the central character. As "Buddie" is making his appearance before the summer vacation, he ought to be a great favorite with young readers before the end of the year.

THE recently published report of the Minister of Education for the Russian Empire shows, he says, "a surprising increase in the number of books published in the realm. In 1908 there were published 23,852 books—75,868,320 volumes. In 1909 the number of books was 26,638 and the total number of volumes 101,466,908. For 1910 the number of books was 29,057 and the number of volumes 109,990,000. The great majority were printed in the Russian language."

HARPER & BROTHERS are the publishers of a merry little tale, "Essence of Honeymoon," by H. Perry Robinson, author of "Men Born Equal." It relates the adventures of two young people who started out on their wedding trip resolved that every one should think they had been married for years and also determined that their honeymoon should really last all their lives. How they failed in the first and succeeded in the second determination make the story, the scene of which is laid in England.

A. C. McCLURG & COMPANY announce that they have just received the manuscript of a new book of fairy tales by Edith Ogden Harrison, the wife of Carter H. Harrison, who has just taken his chair for the fifth time as mayor of Chicago. The new story strongly suggests "Prince Silverwings," Mrs. Harrison's first success, and will be uniform with that volume. Mrs. Harrison now has five books of fairy tales to her credit, besides the romance which McClurg published last fall, "Princess Sayrane."

MISS MARY JOHNSTON's great novel of the War between the States, "The Long Roll," will be published by Houghton Mifflin Company next Saturday. This book, it is said by the publishers, bears out Walt Whitman's prediction of many years ago. "A great literature," he wrote, "will yet arise out of the era of those four years, those scenes—era—compressing centuries of native passion, first-class pictures, tempests of life and death—an inexhaustible mine for the histories, drama, romance and even philosophy of peoples to come."

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & COMPANY are the publishers of Orison Swett Marden's books, all of which have a direct appeal for the earnest man endeavoring to make the best of himself and his opportunities. Of "The Miracle of Right Thought," one of the author's latest works, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., says, "replete with suggestion and encouragement for young men," while the Boston Transcript says of it, "no man who endeavors to live as this book suggests can but be a better man, more useful in his home and in his community."

GEORGE W. HUMPHREY, 21 Bromfield Street, Boston, has for sale a privately printed edition of "A History of Simon Willard, Inventor and Clockmaker," together with some account of his apprentices and workmen associated with him, and with brief notices of other clockmakers of the family name. The work is written by John Ware Willard, a great grandson of Simon. It is a finely gotten up book in quarto size, large type, and contains thirty-four illustrations in half-tone, photogelatin and in color, with facsimiles of letters, etc. The edition is limited to 500 copies, which are numbered.

WILLIAM JAMES did not live to complete what may be considered as his greatest work, which develops still further the author's great pragmatic programme. What he has written offers a lucid and original restatement and solution of the chief problems of all philosophy, and as it is complete in itself, it will be published this spring. "Say," he wrote in the memorandum directing its publication, "that I had hoped by it to round out my system, which now is too much like an arch built only on one side." The Longmans will publish this work shortly.

PHILIP VERRILL MIGHELS, author of "The Furnace of Gold," has a new book, "Thurley Ruxton," which Desmond Fitzgerald, Inc., publish. The scene is laid in New York, where Thurley Ruxton is living with a wealthy woman. The girl bears a strong resemblance to Princess Thirvinia, who is missing from her kingdom of Hertzegotha. For a joke Thurley and her friend do not check the rumor that she is the Princess, but they find that the consequences of their joke are far-reaching and very exciting before all comes right at the end.

"THE CAREER OF A CHILD," by Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, is a valuable contribution made to the intelligent study of the education of the child. The author is a recognized authority, being at the head of the National Association for the Study and Education of Exceptional Children. The teachings in this book are the results of many years of practical educational work, and more particularly of the author's creative organizing activity in the years 1890 to 1897, as superintendent of the "Ethical Culture Schools" of New York, which have been a source of practical experience to a great many educators. Richard G. Badger is the publisher.

A NEW kind of circulating library is to be tried by the Belgian Government. At Brussels a central library consisting at the outset of 10,000 volumes is to be created, and any inhabitant of any part of Belgium who owns a post office savings bank book will be entitled to borrow from it and receive by mail any book for a fortnight upon having two cents checked off his account at the post office. His deposit serves as a guarantee for payment for books not returned. As there are about 1500 post offices in Belgium, this will amount to the creation of a circulating library with some 1500 branches, whose risks will be more than covered by the deposits in the savings banks.

THE new publishing plant of Doubleday, Page & Co. was formally dedicated Wednesday in the presence of a large party of authors, artists, friends and well wishes, among them Montague Glass, James Oppenheim, Mrs. Mary Stewart Cutting, Leroy Scott, Frank Adams, Henry Reuterdahl, A. B. Maurice, Charles Lanier, James Ford, Miss Galbraith Welch, Thomas Dixon, Daniel Frohman, Miss F. M. Holly, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman and John Burroughs. The programme for the day included an inspection of the building and grounds, some exercise in the tennis court, a little sprinting on the athletic field and a luncheon, which was heartily enjoyed.

CASSELL & COMPANY announce as ready a sumptuous yet inexpensive souvenir of the coming royal festivities, "The Book of the Coronation," which has been planned to commemorate worthily an epochal event in English history. The color plates of the king and queen are characteristic specimens embodying the last word in three-color process work, while the text and other illustrations have been selected and produced with great care. Not alone will the pomp and pageantry of the imperial event of the year be pictured forth in its pages, but when "the tumult and shouting dies" the book will provide a permanent record in color and black-and-white of the wonderful spectacle England is soon to witness.

JOHN SPARGO is about to issue another important collection of related essays under the title of "Sidelights on Contemporary Socialism." The divisions of the book are entitled: I., "Marx, Leader and Guide;" II., "Anti-Intellectualism in the Socialist Movement, a Historical Survey;" III., "The Influence of Marx on Contemporary Socialism." Especial interest attaches to the work, in that it refutes the oft-repeated charge against Socialist writers, that they address different arguments to their brethren than to outsiders. The first two sections were prepared for reading to Socialist audiences; the third appeared in the American Journal of Sociology. The book will be published this season by B. W. Huebsch, New York.

ADMIRAL PEARY'S book, "The North Pole," continues its sale unabatedly since Congress has made Peary a rear admiral and formally thanked him. Only forty times in history have the formal thanks of Congress been given; and to only six persons have they been given for any feats save success in warfare. The recent publication of "A Tenderfoot With Peary," by George Borup, has also thrown a light upon Peary, because in this book the young Yale athlete of Peary's party pictures "The Commander" not only as a great and successful explorer, efficiently and dauntlessly pushing on, but also as a most generous and lovable friend to all his associates. Peary is shown as a warm human figure, though of stirring heroic proportions.

At the imperial education conference recently held privately at the English Foreign Office, it was resolved that the simplification of spelling was a matter of urgent importance throughout the empire, "demanding such practical steps in every country as may appear most conducive to the creation of enlightened public opinion and the direction thereof to the maintenance of English in purity and simplicity among all English speaking people." Among the suggestions was a proposal from Dr. Mackay, of Nova Scotia, that there be progressive simultaneous simplification of spelling with recurring periods throughout the English speaking world, including the United States, along the general lines recommended by the Simplified Spelling Board.

SHERMAN, FRENCH & COMPANY have just published "Psychic Phenomena, Science and Immortality," which is meant to supplement and complete the work of research in a thoroughly fundamental way which the author has already done on the ever-present problem of the future life. In Mr. Frank's former work, issued by the same publishers, and entitled "Modern Light on Immortality," the second edition of which, by the way, is just announced, the author began at the very dawn of civilization, and, leaving no stone unturned, traversed history, philosophy, religion and psychic science and psychology to learn how they might bear on the solution of the momentous problem of immortality. But when he reached the realms of psychology he found the field so vast as to require a presentation of the facts there discovered in a separate treatise.

UNDER the title "The Speakers of the House of Commons," published this week by John Lane Company, Arthur Irwin Dasend presents a topographical description of Westminster at various epochs and a brief record of the various constitutional changes during seven centuries. The book is founded on authentic documents and official records, and deals with the relations between the two Houses of Parliament from the earliest institution. The volume contains a large collection of photographs. A new translation from the Russian by Constance Garnett of "War and Peace," by Count Leo Tolstoy, is published this week by the same house. The Bookman, in reviewing this book, remarks: "In this new rendering of Tolstoy Miss Garnett has surpassed herself." In "Sam's Kid" F. E. Mills Young, author of "Chip," "Atonement" and "A Mistaken Marriage," relates the story of a girl's devotion and self-sacrifice for the man she loves.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY this month publishes the following books: "A Holiday in Gaol," by Frederic Martyn, the record of actual experience of eighteen months' hard labor in an English prison; Mary Barton's "Impressions of Mexico with Brush and Pen," an interesting book of travel in the country which occupies, just now, such a prominent place in the world's news; the illustrations are reproductions in color from pictures by the author; "The Open Book of Nature," by Rev. Charles A. Hall, is written to stimulate nature interest in young people and to encourage a study of natural history; it has many illustrations, both in color and black and white; "The Herb Garden," by Frances A. Bardswell, tells how to grow and use many of the herbs familiar to our grandmother's gardens, but rather crowded out in these days; there are sixteen illustrations in color, drawn from nature by the Hon. Florence Amherst and Isabelle Forrest. "The Religion of Beauty in Woman and Other Essays on Platonic Love in Poetry and Society," by Jefferson Butler Fletcher; and "Principles of Education," by W. Franklin Jones, head of the Department of Theory and Practice in the Maryland State Normal School, Baltimore, are also ready.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BANGOR, ME.—In the fire of April 30 book and stationery trades suffered severely. W.

L. Eldredge, bookseller and stationer at 62 State Street, was burned out, his loss being only partly covered by insurance.

BELFAST, ME.—Frank R. Woodcock, surviving member of the firm of M. P. Woodcock & Son, booksellers and stationers, has been appointed executor of the will of his father, Marlboro P. Woodcock.

BOSTON, MASS.—The C. M. Clarke Publishing Company are asking for a year's extension.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA.—Emma E. and Nora Walsh, of Jacksonville, Fla., have their bookstore building nearly completed and will soon stock it with a nice line of standard fiction, stationery, magazines, newspapers and other periodicals. They aim to give Fort Lauderdale an up-to-date bookstore and newsstand.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—J. B. Hulst, one of the largest importers and publishers of Dutch books in the country, has retired, selling out to the W. B. Eerdmans Company. Mr. Hulst has been in business in this city over twenty years, and at his present location since 1896. W. B. Eerdmans, the president of the new concern, is an active young Dutch business man, a graduate of Calvin College. He will leave this city for the Netherlands next week to establish his business relations there, and after his return will commence active work at the local concern. The Eerdmans Book Publishing House at East Street and Wealthy Avenue will be consolidated with the new concern, making the business even more extensive.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—The stationery and book business of E. E. Simon was burned out two weeks ago.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA.—Frank A. Creswell, the "Greek Lamp Book Store," has made an assignment.

NEW YORK CITY.—The London Book Publishing Company has leased offices in the Acker, Merrill & Condit Building on Fifth Avenue and 35th Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—Robert Rutter & Sons, the well-known bookbinders, announce the removal of their plant to 410-416 East 32d Street, where 20,000 square feet of floor space in a new fireproof building is now occupied. The equipment of the already large bindery has been added to for both cloth and leather edition binding. The Rutter firm are specialists in de luxe edition binding.

NEW YORK CITY.—Frederick A. Rodgers, dealer in books and stationery at 2894 Broadway, has had a petition in bankruptcy filed against him by Eugene Ditzgen Company, $642; D. Van Nostrand Company, $315, and Alex. Taylor & Co., $293. Judge Hough appointed Arthur J. Cohen receiver. Assets estimated at $3500 in stock and fixtures.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—A. B. Holmes is asking for an extension, payable 25 per cent. in 60 days, 25 per cent. in 90 days and balance in four months.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

BACK NUMBERS of Magazines supplied by W. D. ROWLAND, Lock Box 2, Plankinton S. D.

TO PUBLISHERS, BINDERS AND PRINTERS. A prominent book salesman acquainted with buyers throughout the country will establish shortly in New York a wholesale commission business for the sale of odd lots and edition remainders of single volumes and sets of books. Frequent catalogues and bulletins will be issued to the trade and it is obvious that buyers visiting New York will appreciate the advantage of buying from an immense line of special jobs in one centrally located sample room. The purpose is to form a wholesale clearing exchange for the booktrade. Another department of the business will be devoted to the interests of publishers in other cities desiring New York selling representation on regular lines of stock. Correspondence is solicited from firms having surplus stocks for sale and from publishers desiring sample room facilities in New York. F. R., care of PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, New York.

Annual Library Index 1910

TO the usual divisions of this yearly digest there is continued this year the select list of all the important public and semi-public libraries in the United States and Canada, fully 1200 entries, giving the location, librarian's name, number of volumes, accessions in the past year, annual income, etc.; also information as to library commission, library association and library clubs of each state.

 An entirely new feature in this volume is a list of Private Collectors of Books in the U. S., with mention of the specialty in collecting of each. There are nearly 1200 names and addresses arranged geographically, gathered through well informed correspondents and by direct letters.

The Story of the Aeroplane

By CLAUDE GRAHAME-WHITE

Profusely illustrated from photographs, diagrams, etc. Probable price, $2.00 net

BY the world's most famous aviator, this book is easily the most important contribution that has yet been made to the literature of aviation. Mr. Grahame-White, who is the present holder of the Gordon-Bennett Cup, the "blue-ribbon" trophy of the air, has had wide personal experience as an air pilot as well as success in making his own improvements in aeroplane construction, so that he is uniquely fitted to write an enthusiastic and at the same time careful and painstakingly complete account of the science and practice of aviation.

He has written his book especially at our suggestion, and has addressed himself particularly to American readers.

He traces the growth of the heavier-than-air machine from the earliest experiments with gliders to the successful experiments of the Wright brothers and the latest improvements of 1911; deals fully with aviation accidents and analyzes expertly some thirty fatalities; discusses aviation meetings, their success and failure; goes fully into the interesting possibilities of the aeroplane in war; gives the record of achievement in aviation; depicts vividly actual flight and its unique sensations; and takes up many other subjects that make his book of vital personal interest, not only to the thousands who have enthusiastically watched the flight of aeroplanes, but also to the other thousands who have not yet seen the flights but who are following the subject with eagerness. The pictures form a unique collection, complete in every way.

The fact that Mr. Grahame-White will visit America again this year to participate in important meets will emphasize the selling power of his "Story of the Aeroplane." We urge all booksellers to take advantage of the tremendous publicity the author has already received to keep a good quantity of the book in stock.

THE BIG LEAGUE

By Charles E. Van Loan

Frontispiece, decorative wrapper. = $1.00 net; by mail, $1.10

A book of baseball fiction to gladden the heart of every "fan." Never before, so the players themselves affirm, have the big leaguers been so truthfully depicted; never before has baseball had so vivid, dramatic and humorous a story-teller.

Mr. Van Loan has been, until recently, the "star" sporting writer of the New York American, having retired from newspaper work for a while to devote himself to fiction.

THE GARDEN OF THE SUN

By Captain T. J. Powers, U.S.A.

Illustrated, decorative wrapper. $1.25 net; by mail, $1.37

AN able novel of army life in the Philippines, filled with the glamour of its vivid tropical setting, the tense situations of existence in an outpost where the dangers of insurrection are always present, while intrigue and passionate love and the interweaving of human lives work themselves out as inevitably as in the most peaceful society of continental United States. Captain Powers here gives us his first novel, and it is written with a master hand.

THE CROSS OF HONOUR

By Mary Openshaw

The Love Story of Napoleon

Decorative wrapper. $1.20 net; by mail, $1.32

In introducing Mary Openshaw to American readers we feel that we are presenting an author who is assured of instant popularity. She is a born story-teller and has given her material a masterly handling. The action of the novel centers around Napoleon's love for the Countess Walewska, "that mysterious haision," says the distinguished historian, Frederic Masson, "which was the grand passion of his life." Full of thrilling excitement "The Cross of Honour" is a well-knit novel of great power.
